ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

To my husband- Your unwavering support fuels my writing journey, and I'm eternally grateful to you.

To my children... Thank you for being my constant source of inspiration.

"Are you up to your mischief again, Max?" his mother asked.

Max was well known for playing tricks
whenever he wanted cookies.

He loved cookies so much!

Max quietly sneaked into the kitchen.

These cookies smell so good!
he thought.

Maybe I'll just have a little bite.

Just as he was about to put the cookie in his mouth, his mother walked in.

Startled, he dropped the cookie, and it landed on his mother's foot.

"It's not good to take things without asking," said his mother. "Too many sweets aren't good for your health."

But Max was determined to get more cookies without being caught.

He needed to think of a clever plan.

"Hey, Tommy, come here!" Max called to his friend. "I need your help. Go to the stairs and pretend you've fallen—make a lot of noise!"

Tommy zipped off and let out a loud scream,
"Ouchhhh! Oh nooo!"

"What was that?" Max's mother asked, hurrying toward the sound.

While she was distracted, Max and Tommy raced to the pantry.

At last, Max had another chance to eat his delicious cookies... Yay!

But when they entered the pantry, the cookie jar was empty!

"What? How can this be?" Max exclaimed.

"Could Mom have hidden the jar because of me?"

As they were leaving the pantry, Max spotted a hidden compartment behind a bag of flour.

Delighted, the two friends grabbed the cookies and made a run for it!

Max's mom heard the commotion and chased them around the kitchen, through the living room, and back again!

Round and round they went, with Max and Tommy narrowly avoiding being caught.

A decorative border of pink flowers and green leaves frames the central text. The flowers include daisies, roses, and smaller blossoms, all in shades of pink and light purple, set against a solid brown background.

Panting and sweating, they finally stopped to eat.

But when Max took a bite, he immediately spat it out. "Yuck!" he shouted.

Tommy frowned. "I don't want any either.

This tastes awful!"

"How could this happen?" Max wondered, disappointed.

But now, more than ever, he wanted real cookies!

Max walked up to his mother. "I'm sorry, Mom. I should've listened to you."

Can I have some cookies, please?

The ones I took taste terrible. I want your delicious cookies instead."

You ate the cookies I made for my puppy!" said Max's sister, Emily, bursting into laughter.

"Yuck! I'll never steal cookies again!" Max promised.

Everyone joined Emily in laughing.

With a smile, Max's mom handed him a plate of his favorite cookies, which she had saved just for him and his friends.
